Studio Synergy, Inc., located in Redondo's Riviera Village, is a full-service design firm that assists clients in all aspects of construction including site selection, planning, design, consultant coordination, agency approvals and construction observation. The firm's focus is on private residences of all sizes and budgets, with a portion of its portfolio dedicated to commercial and institutional projects. Nitsiotis is a graduate of the USC School of Architecture and incorporates more than 20 years of professional experience into Studio Synergy. With a hands-on approach, he is driven to produce thoughtful designs and high quality projects which exceed his clients expectations. Currently, his team is working on residences throughout the South Bay.

OUT OF THE BOX

"I'm not of any particular school of design. I believe all work is contemporary, whether it has a traditional or modern vocabulary. In general, this outlook allows me the discipline to create to a particular vocabulary but also allows me the creative edge to break the rules, when appropriate, and create something absolutely unique and thought-provoking. California and the South Bay are wonderful centers for this type of creativity. On their own, they have an inherent and unique design aesthetic far different than other parts of the country and the world."

WORD TO LIVE BY

"Synergy, of course. Coming from the Greek word synergos, meaning 'working together', it is the one word that best embodies what is important to me, the process, and the final outcome we produce. For me, it goes even beyond the obvious definitions of a team or a particular work methodology; it emphasizes a sense of life balance, happiness and overall contentment."
